

OKLAHOMA CITY UNIVERSITY
University Advancement and External Relations

March 6, 2007

RE: Alicia Monroe

I am writing this letter to express my confidence in Alicia Monroe's abilities as a teacher, scholar and mentor. She is intelligent, articulate and dedicated to her work. She will be an excellent role model for young people and an asset to any school where she teaches.

I hired Alicia as a writer at Oklahoma City University a number of years ago before she determined that teaching was her calling. Alicia has an excellent command of language as well as a creative side that will assist her in preparing challenging and interesting lessons for her students. She was always meticulous in her work and I am certain she will be so in her classroom preparations.

In addition to her knowledge and skill, Alicia has a strong work ethic. She is honest and loyal and always gives 110% whether to her job or to her relationships with others. She was respected by the staff who enjoyed being in her company. I know that she would set high goals for her students and work diligently to assist them in reaching those goals.

I recommend Alicia to you as a person and a professional. As a former teacher and administrator in the Norman and Mid-Del Public Schools, I can say without a doubt that she is the kind of teacher and person I would be pleased to have as a colleague or a member of my faculty. She will not disappoint you!

Sincerely,

Vicki Patterson
Senior Director of Communications and Marketing

VP/jh